

Money, Success and Colour

While not everyone knows their exact colour profile, one can still identify with certain colours and tendencies towards money more so than with other colours. It is important to remember that any one person is not just one colour, but a combination of all seven. We can use this information to bring in specific energies if we ever feel we need to shift our attitude and how we approach our finances and success.

Money and Success for Red People

Red people are not driven by money. Money is a necessity for survival, but it does not rule their lives. Success is the result of the moment for red people. They want to see the result of their work right away. They flourish in result-oriented jobs.

Occupations for Red People

Red people make good salespeople, politicians, surgeons, wrestlers, boxers, emergency rescue workers, fire fighters, construction workers, carpenters, dancers, as well as business and project starters.

Money and Success for Orange People

It does not take much money for an orange person to be happy. They would prefer it if someone could look after them financially. They do not mind working, but they do not like to work too hard for their money. They seldom know they have spent the money they earned. They are irresponsible with money and not financially stable. Orange people have to work very hard to save money. They judge their success on their popularity and on how much fun and freedom they have had.

Occupations for Orange People

Orange people make great artists, musicians, massage therapists, diplomats, social workers, and politicians. They are born healers. They also make good health consultants, dieticians, veterinarians, athletes, flight attendants, tour guides, receptionists, restaurant managers, bartenders and doctors.

Money and Success for Yellow People

Security and stability are important factors for yellow people. Money as such is not the most important thing, but they need to know that they have enough to live on. They usually have long-term investments and are well-informed about their pensions and retirement plans. They do not fritter away their money but spend it practically and reasonably. Yellow people measure their success by the amount of schooling they have had and by what they have learned. They like the feeling of having planned for their future, both in work and in their private affairs. They need to feel that they have definite boundaries in their lives.

Occupations for Yellow People

Yellow people need jobs that allow them to use their friendly, optimistic, curious, bright and insightful minds. This keeps them satisfied and healthy. Yellow people are often drawn to intellectually challenging work. They make good architects, bookkeepers, market analysts, computer analysts, mathematicians, researchers, data processors, professors, librarians, court reporters, office clerks, customer service reps, engineers, teachers, psychologists, city planners and technical writers.

Money and Success for Green People

Green people are good givers, but they are not good at receiving. They often feel that the work they do has to come from the heart and not from a desire for money. Because money does not have a top priority, they often feel that they do not have enough money, especially if they have families. They also frequently choose careers that do not pay well. This is a major complaint of theirs. Green people should learn that growth, whether spiritual or materialistic, is an energy in itself and not a sin. Green people base their success on how many people they have been able to help, how many friends they have, and the length of their marriages. They like to help people and often choose jobs in which they can do this.

Occupations for Green People

Green people make good teachers, nurses, counselors, childcare workers, gardeners, florists, veterinarians, forest managers, real estate agents, bankers and healers.

Money and Success for Blue People

Blue people easily acquire money, but they work hard for the money too. Money means status, power and security. They have an inner power, that helps them to acquire nice things and money easily. Blue people judge their success by what they have obtained in life, by how much people respect them, or by how much money they have.

Occupations for Blue People

Blue people are good business people, teachers, historians, missionaries, art collectors, politicians, preachers, ministers, religious leaders, singers, archaeologists, church assistants, entrepreneurs, bankers, corporate heads, real estate agents, and good stock brokers. They make good nurses and landlords too. Blue people are generally good in any profession that requires organization, order and control.

Money and Success for Indigo People

Indigo people understand that money is energy and that you need money in this world to survive. Indigo people, like green and violet people, cannot work for financial gain only. They would never do anything that would harm people, plants, or the environment for financial gain. As idealists, they would rather die. They feel successful and happy when they can do what they want to do and believe in what they will. They feel that they have succeeded when they can help other souls and when humanity seems to be on the right track. Indigo people's goal is the sense of universal connection and community.

Occupations for Indigo People

Indigo people choose employment in which they can influence other people with their faith. This includes child related jobs, social work, and all animal related work. Indigo people make good artists, designers, writers, composers, musicians, counsellors, parapsychologists, inventors and clairvoyants.

Money and Success for Violet People

The wealthiest people on the planet are blue and violet. The difference between the two is that blue people can work for money only, while violet people must believe in what they work for. They must enjoy their work and be certain that there is a higher purpose behind their success. To know success, violet people must feel that they have touched the world with their message. They must feel that they have done their share in making this world a better place to live. Violet people contribute much to society, whether they are great artists or great leaders. You seldom have any doubts when you run into a violet person. They are very charismatic.

Occupations for Violet People

Violet people are happiest when they are self-employed. They find it difficult to work for others. Media technology plays an important part in violet people's lives; they can reach a larger audience through television, film or theatre. Violet people often work as writers, teachers, politicians, astronauts, psychologists, architects or designers. Artists, leaders, and messengers of the world benefit from the violet energy's inspiring power.
